

Crisis management must be universal: including persons with disabilities in planning saves lives and strengthens the response for society as a whole.

Planning and Fundamental Rights

1. Include persons with disabilities from the start.

2. Treat accessibility as an enforceable right.

3. Create inclusive internal operating protocols.

Alliances, Community and Budget

4. Foster multisector partnerships.

5. Create community participation plans.

6. Ensure a specific budget line for accessibility.

Training and Accessible Communication

7. Mandatory training for humanitarian personnel.

8. Implement alternative identification and communication systems (easy-read, visual and audio).

Practical Preparedness and Improvement

9. Conduct regular inclusive drills.

10. Evaluate and adapt policies continuously.

11. Promote insurance adapted for economic protection.
